Art of Fashion Fundraiser

In 1954, a group of charitable women formed The Country Friends, a non-profit organization providing funding to numerous San Diego-based charities. Over the years, its efforts have raised nearly $14 million for causes focusing on women, children, the elderly, the military, the disabled, and the homeless. The fast-paced half-hour runway show, held beneath a gigantic net canopy, featured the fall/winter collections of 13 top design brands. The event's multi-year fashion partner, South Coast Plaza. The presentation drew raves from the appreciative audience.

Fuller — were quickly purchased by admirers, including the organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.

The organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.

The organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.

The organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.

The organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.

The organization — and received a T-shirt reading “Man Enough to be a Girl Scout.” The organization was founded in 1912 by Katherine Burton, whose leadership and advocacy has helped ensure that Girl Scouts can continue to thrive as an organization.